

Safety procedures are now in place for monitoring body temperature

When checking in, you will now have your body temperatures measured in compliance with our revised COVID 19 risk assessment.

If anyone is showing an abnormal reading or the fever alert sounds, our staff will discreetly ask you if there may be any reason for it? It may well be you have rushed to check in for your start time on the golf course or restaurant booking. If this is the case, we will retest you after five minutes has passed. You will be asked to wait outside until being called back in.

Along with track and trace recording, hand sanitisers in place etc, testing forehead temperatures will ensure and protect our staff and members/visitors.

Anyone with an unexplained raised body temperature will be politely denied entry to the clubhouse plus access to the golf course and hotel (unless in residence then they will be asked to return to their apartment/house) and they will be advised to seek medical guidance asap.
